Mindful OD Practice

May 2, 2022

For more than 25 years, I have observed the effectiveness of Chris Fernandez's consulting work. I have known Chris as a corporate employee, an instructor, but most importantly as a consultant par excellence.

The challenges the organizations face today need creative, mindful attention, and Chris has the tools, wisdom, and expertise to address these issues. From turnaround efforts to re-education, Chris has demonstrated knowledge, capabilities and compassion to work in an array of industries in need of change and improvement.

Chris' willingness to work with clients and their unique needs illustrates his desire to strengthen the organization's core of culture alignment, clear direction and participative leadership – the foundation of his mindful OD work.

Chris brings his mindful OD work to organizations often in the form of learning, training, and change. In seminars, I have personally witnessed Chris' ability to engage (sometimes resistant) organizational members by instilling knowledge and collaboration among corporate team members. The concept of a more creative workforce is Chris' expertise, as his end-result is in partnership with clients who aspire culture alignment and a clearer direction for their organization.
